125TH CELEBRATION - TALES FROM THE ARCHIVES

Mr H. C. Stewart was the headmaster for much of the 1910s. M.C. Amadio remembers him as being a much feared but greatly respected man. The kids generally referred to him as 'Old Stewart'. He used to tell the kids stories about the glories of the British Empire. In those days no teacher owned a motor car and there were only a dozen cars in the whole district. Most pupils walked to school from several miles away, a few had bicycles and some rode horses. It was an amazing sight as the horses usually shared the school playground with all the kids.
